How can you help create resilience?

As a corporation, there are a number of opportunities to partner with us in this work:

- Financially: Gifts can be focused in the country or health area of most relevance to your company or employees. You may choose to add it to our overall resilience resources for our team to determine best usage given emerging needs.

- If your company already provides matching gifts, there is the possibility to leverage your financial contribution through recommending employee engagement within communications on your current scheme.

- In-kind donations of relevant products and commodities for both Pathfinder and government partners is another avenue of support. Commodities currently required include family planning and sexual reproductive health products, personal protection equipment, and personal sanitation products such as soap, hand sanitizer or other cleaning products. Additionally, airtime that can support data availability for our teams to keep information flowing to partners, with community organizations and with each other.

- Expertise: Through pro-bono support by your personnel across the world to help maintain our work and support systems as the environment changes.

- Advocacy: By working together with Pathfinder International and other key organizations to lobby for greater awareness of resilience need globally so that we can all help to protect women, girls and other vulnerable populations.

For more information, and to discuss how your support can help change the trajectory for women and girls please contact Cate at co’kane@pathfinder.org